

Manufacturing is still rebounding from the “Yellen slump”.

The “catch-up” growth should not be construed as reflecting a “strong economy”.

Total industry capacity utilization provides the same information: the economy is weak, not strong, as some like to call it.

